

You have reached this site in error. Michelin migrated to a new, consolidated training platform in November of 2018. Please reference the letter below that was sent to all customer in November of 2018.

November 27, 2018

Dear Valued Dealer,

Michelin is moving beyond the traditional learning and training sites to reinvent the way learning and development initiatives impact your success.

Effective November 28, 2018, we will be launching one centralized website that will unify the digital learning experience with unparalleled, deep learning management capabilities and modern content. We will be providing you a variety of training material and collaborative tools to further engage learning impact.

Additionally, our brand new Learning Management System (LMS) will be housed with MyPortal, continuing to provide in depth training material for all MICHELIN®, BFGoodrich®, and Uniroyal® products.

It is Michelin's hope that the transition to the LMS is smooth and easy for all of its customers. Quick reference guides have been created and will be provided as well as more personalized training should it be requested. Access to technical support is just one phone call away as an E-Business Support Team has been established for any quick needs. This team can be reached at 1-888-624-2638.

As always, Michelin thanks all of its partners for their continued business and support. Working collaboratively over the past several months has made this tremendous step forward possible and it is our hope that dealers will continue to provide feedback via their local Territory Business Manager, the MyPortal Development Team, and through any upcoming surveys.

Sincerely,

Tim Cunningham

Director of Customer Training and Development

Michelin North America, Inc.